

Boating Accident Claims One Life

This district was shocked on Sunday when word was received of the untimely death of "Les" LeGrand. Les and Gordie Gebers took out on a fishing trip to Buck Lake last weekend; Les was the victim of a boating accident.

According to sketchy reports he stood up in the boat and it overturned; a nearby boater rescued Gordie after he had tried to save his companion; artificial respiration was used to revive him.

John Leslie LeGrand, aged 57, was born in Pasopadec, Que., and came to Didsbury in 1945. He was a grain buyer for the United Grain Growers and was a member of the B.P.O.E.

He is survived by his wife, Maye; one daughter, Marlene, of Edmonton; and two sons, Donald, R.C.N., Victoria, B.C. and Vaughn, R.C.A.F., Trenton, Ont.

Services were held from Foster's Garden Chapel, Calgary, at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday. Interment followed in Queen's Park cemetery.

Somebody Else Interested ???

The Editor,
The Didsbury Pioneer,
Didsbury, Alberta.

Dear Sir:

I have read with interest Mr. Staunton's question in the Pioneer and Mr. Owens' answer thereto. I would answer these questions as follows:

1. The Olds School Division Mill Rate was increased because Provincial Government contributions to the cost of education are not keeping up with mounting costs.
2. Judging from the different reports I have read in the newspapers increased municipal taxation appears to be the rule rather than the exception.
3. Under an insurance plan, which our hospital scheme now is, where all residents of the Province get the same benefits to one class of society should have to pay a special tax. Why, therefore, should property owners be assessed a special tax when they get exactly the same benefits as non-property owners? Would it be fair to place a special hospital tax against Savings Bank accounts only? What is the difference?

4. and 5. Because the Government prefers to keep its cash to promote its five year plan. As long as it has cash to do what it wants with it is quite content to saddle the municipalities with high interest rates on their borrowings.

6. The natural resources were transferred to the Alberta Government from the Dominion Government by an agreement which became effective as of July 15th, 1930, at which time the Bennett Government was in power in Ottawa. Please note that the Provincial Government before that time did not have this source of ready cash to draw upon, and it was not until the Social Credit Government had been in power for some time that these resources really started to pay off. Possibly this explains why, as the Premier says, the Province was practically bankrupt when Social Credit took over.

Cremona Teen-Agers Entertain Counterparts

On May 23rd and 24th, a group of Cremona teenagers were hosts to a similar group from Munson, Alberta, who were returning their visit that the Cremona group paid last year. Gail Adams, wheat queen, was a member of the Munson group.

A Cremona welcoming delegation, led by Miss Maynes, met the Munson bus at the Glen Johnston farm where they camped. In the evening a brief parade, marching to the music supplied by Mr. Charlie Bennett and led by Marco Hasby, drum majorette, filed through the main street of Cremona. Mrs. Thorndall's dancers entertained with a tap dance and hand fling on the sidewalk. Following the parade the teenagers from the two communities boarded buses and went to the Little Red Deer River for an open-air "mid-dish" and marsh-mallow roast. Music was supplied by the Rocketeers and Mr. Lawrence Krebs.

Sunday morning the two groups joined again for a 60-mile tour of the west country. South of the Big Prairie post office the buses were ambushed. Miss Maynes, the "four-leader," was forcibly taken from the bus and lynched. Bob Thomas, the Munson leader, was strung up also along with stuffed replicas of Cremona's "Last Sheriff" and Tom Dooley.

After a camp fire dinner at the Deer Pound camp grounds the group returned to Cremona where Mr. Watsonford showed them his collection of Indian relics and gave an interesting talk on Indian folklore. They then drove to the Johnston farm for a final wienie roast and the "Munsonites" departed for home and the regretful good-byes of many teenagers who had found new friends.

Ballot Boxes Need Customers . . .

Come next Thursday ballot boxes throughout the province will have open jaws waiting for the votes of those who are eligible to use their services. June 18 is the date of the provincial election — the ballot boxes, or the writer of this column, are not interested in your voting affairs — just take your pick and keep the boxes busy. That's what they're there for!

A Most Important Day (Prejudiced Version) . . .

There has been some confusion over the date upon which Father's Day is to be celebrated this year, due to the first day of June falling on the Monday. Apparently the correct date is to be Sunday, June 21. Thus it is that Mother's Day falls on the second Sunday in May, and Father's Day falls on the third Sunday in June. Paste this on your yearly calendar for future reference. I've already pasted that June date-line on ours.

Budgie Parade . . .

We were reading recently of a couple in a neighboring town who have close to 100 budgies and canaries. One day we have to see this set-up — we've only got one budgie in our house and he's busy from dawn to dark moving from one place to another; only trouble is every time he moves, he moves. We want to see what conditions are like when you have a hundred of them on the move.

Hail Studies Begin In Central Alberta

This week and next an appeal for detailed hail information will be received through the mail by 20,000 persons in central Alberta. This appeal marks the beginning of the fourth season in Alberta Hail Studies, a research project devoted to the study and understanding of the physical process at work in Alberta's destructive hail storms. The project area, from which hail information is sought extends from Wetaskiwin to High River and from Camrose - Drumheller westward. Storms in this area are detected and measured by means of a special weather radar installation at Penhold. By relating the hail information to the radar observations, the weather scientists are able to determine in detail the history of the storm.

The hail information which is sought includes the date and location of the hail, the exact time it began and how long it lasted. The project also seeks information on the largest hail stones observed, and welcomes additional remarks on the shape or appearance of the hail, whether it is clear or opaque etc. Special postcards are being supplied on which the information can be noted. In addition the public is invited to phone hail information, collect, to project headquarters, whose phone number is Red Deer 2345.

Alberta Hail Studies is supported by the Research Council of Alberta and the Meteorological Service of Canada. The storm detection radar is supplied and maintained by the National Research Council. Planning of the program, and study of the data, is assisted by the Stormy Weather Group of McGill University. Field headquarters for the project is at RCAF Station Penhold, where there will be a staff of eight this summer. In addition to collecting hail reports and radar data, the group plans to collect and measure samples of hail, to make photographic studies of the storm clouds themselves, and to determine the small-scale pressure disturbances which are associated with the storms.

Facts About Fabrics
There are so many new fabrics and finishes on the market it is very difficult to determine what the fabric is unless there is an information tag on the article. Different fabrics and finishes require special care so that it is important you read the tag and keep it for reference when you wish to laundry
the garment.

It is a rare label that gives complete information but here is what is what a good label should show:
1. Fabric trade-name if any.
2. Garment maker's name.
3. Colorfastness to light, cracking, fading, (fume, fading), perspiration and especially to washing.
4. Special finishes used.

5. Percent of residual shrinkage.
6. It has a shrink-control finish.
7. Special care instructions including washing, drying, ironing, hand or machine washing, wash water temperature, use of automatic dryer.

If directions are followed, a good label assures good laundering. Buy fabrics with labels that are truly informative.

Since many labels are not as they should be it is important that you as homemakers have a general understanding of many of the textile terms.

1. Disciplined Cotton, Drip-Dry or Wash and Wear — are all terms for a fabric which has been treated so that it can be washed and worn with little or no ironing. The fabric may be:
(a) Cotton with a resin finish.
(b) A Man-Made fibre (e.g. dacron, orlon, arnel, etc.)
(c) A blend of cotton and one of these synthetic fibres.

Wash in water that is warm but not too hot.

Unless label states you can, never use a Chlorine Bleach, water that has been treated with Chlorine, or a soap that contains such a bleach
as this destroys the drip-dry quality and produces a yellow color.

2. Dacron or Terylene — Two names for the same material which boasts superior strength, is washable, drip-dry, wrinkle resistant and is very good for wearing apparel,
knitting yarns and sewing thread.

3. Banlon — is a process than can be applied to any known fabric rather than a fabric itself. Banlon process is most commonly applied to nylon. The desirable qualities of this "crimping" process is lightweight, softness, a high degree of absorbency, quick drying, durability and resistance to shrinking and stretching. The sweaters have a tendency to snag and will crease readily. However, if hung up the creases fall away quickly.

If you would like our free pamphlet "The New Fabrics" which contains helpful information regarding the characteristics, use and care of the new fabrics I will gladly mail them to you upon request.

DANDELIONS: We are again
plagued with this bright yellow flower on roadsides, hay fields, pasture land, lawns, etc. Very little is being done on the part of anyone to control them. Dandelions are not on the noxious weeds list and any control over them is on a voluntary basis.

MCP or 2,4-D at about 8 ounces per acre is usually sufficient to kill out the plants, root and all. However, don't be so optimistic as to suppose that no more dandelions will grow again. New seeds may germinate and there may be a new surge of plants again about August,
from seeds not yet germinated.

For lawns, we now believe that the most fool-proof way to treat dandelions is to use the new wonder bar. This can be purchased from most hardware stores. It is a bar of wax two feet long that has 2,4-D impregnated into the wax.
You simply drag this bar over the lawn just once and this treatment will kill dandelions effectively.

It is also possible to use a handsprayer to apply the mixture of 2,4-D or MCP. Make very sure that it is Lo Volatile material and that there is absolutely no breeze, or else some fumes may drift to nearby susceptible flowers or other shrubs. This goes for both the use of the wonder bar as well as using the hand sprayer. Extreme care in this connection will assure yourself of satisfactory kill to dandelions and no damage to flower plants or shrubs.

Guesting Again . . . These Grants . . .

(The High River Times)

Those who own property in town have received their tax notices during the past week or so. And as they review their notices they may ponder the high cost of living in a modern society of plus facilities, paved roads, fancy sidewalks and fewer bumps in the water system and on the highways.

On the back of these tax notices, Alberta town authorities are required to list the amounts allocated to the particular town by the government in the form of grants. This requirement, we would assume, is supposed to be a reminder of the great generosity and kindly interest of the senior government.

The effort to classify these grants as a gift is carried in the prescribed instruction which reads: "The Province of Alberta reduced the 1958 tax levy against the ratepayers of the Town of — by contributing the following amounts."

The story of benevolence is continued by a listing of the amounts of grants for Education, Health, Welfare, Hospitals, Municipal Assistance and others. In conclusion it totals the amounts of grants under the heading "Total Provincial Assistance."

The accepted meaning of grant is "to bestow or give" and one would hardly consider as a gift, something which he himself owned. In reality, the government in making these grants is returning to the citizen and taxpayer monies which belong to that citizen and taxpayer. In the course of removing this money from us, subsequent administration and routing through government agencies, the amount we get back is considerably less than the amount we turned in through taxation, sale of property, natural resources, and so on and on.

When any area, organization or district receives a grant from a senior government, the citizens concerned might remove their hands from empty pockets and perform a hearty handshake with himself. He has managed to get some of his own cash back. Not as much as he put in, mind you, but some at least.

And he might find some satisfaction in the thought that a portion of the money he contributed is being "granted" to some other area and some other individual who is less farsighted in the choice of a life or who, in the wisdom of the elected representatives were less fortunate in the acquisition of material blessings — less astute in the operation of their affairs.

But the effort to convey the idea that the government is generous, benevolent and kindly in giving grants to towns, cities and municipalities is ridiculous. The taxpayers are merely getting their own money returned — less the tag for administration and handling.

Let's look this gift horse in the mouth.

NOTES FROM The District
Agriculturist
HOWARD FULTCHER

Livestock systems are being advertised and sold for warble control. The chemicals work through the body of the animal, killing parasites at all locations. There are two forms: firstly "bolus forms" for oral treatment. These products administered by mouth have been used to considerable degree in Alberta, and the reported results have been reasonably good.

Two years ago a few losses occurred following its use, but were due largely to careless administration — local damage to the throat or overdosing of young animals.

The recommendations for use have been changed slightly, with particular emphasis being placed on not treating at or following weaning. It can be assumed that the product is safe, if the manufacturers' directions are carefully followed. The job of treating animals individually is a major drawback. Another form of systemics is a spray for external treatment which has not been used to any great extent yet. The commercial literature indicates it to be effective, and experimental work at present is encouraging. Like all new products, it will sometime before the full story is known.

It is applied to animals would appear to allow for a wide margin of safety, but could be a real and deadly hazard to the people that are using it. The inhalation of sprays and the contamination of food and water must be guarded against. If the manufacturers' directions are carefully followed, and the operator is aware of the potential danger of the product, it is safe to use.

DISTRICT CONFERENCE HELD IN DIDSBURY

The 53rd District Conference of the Canadian Northwest District of the United Missionary Church was held at Didsbury, Alberta June 2nd and 3rd.

Rev. K. E. Geiger, of Elkhat, Indiana, general superintendent of the denomination was the chairman and the Rev. H. A. Traub, the district superintendent was co-chairman.

In his report Rev. Traub commended the conference for its giving to foreign missions which was more than $21,000 the past year. He declared however that in the field of home missions and church extensions we were lagging somewhat.

The Rev. D. M. Taylor, president of the Bible college, reported that there was an increase in enrolment the first semester of 33%. The indebtedness of some $2,300 on the new student centre has been completely underwritten by the students. A fine new home for the president is nearing completion.

In view of the fact that the western Evangelist no longer serves any useful purpose, as the monthly news letter and the Gospel Banner can carry the same news, it was decided to discontinue its publication.

In view of a shortage of workers and funds for the work on the Big Horn Indian Reserve conference decided to discontinue this work and to negotiate with other evangelists groups that would be interested in its continuance.

District conference licensees were granted to four new workers, Ormond Shierlock, Stanley C. Dyck, Lawrence Neufeld and Edward Oke.

An ordination service was held in which E. D. Neufeld was ordained and Iris Schlitt was consecrated on approved ministering sister.

The conference recommended that negotiations with respect to the merger with the Missionary Church Association be resumed. At the recent general conference, the merger was defeated by a very narrow margin of required number of votes. Conference decided to petition the general executive board to take appropriate action to secure an expression on this matter from our entire constituency.

A fine new church was dedicated at Athabasca this year. A parsonage was also built at Athabasca. During the year Church property increased by some $35,000 to a total of $390,000. Total offerings for the year were over $104,000.

BLAIN — CONWAY
 Miss Maureen Ellen Conway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Conway of West Drayton, England and Mr. Donald Blain, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Blain, of Didsbury, were a recent bride and groom at Westcott United Church. Rev. G. Giffin officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a satin brocade walk length dress, chapel length veil with pearl and diamond coronet. Pink sweat-heart roses and gardenias formed her cascade bouquet. Maid of honor, Gladys Hixon, wore a cocktail length dress of turquoise and carried a nosegay of white roses and stephanotis.

Best man was Raymond Vipond, Jack McFarquhar and Ronald Blain were ushers.

The organ was capably played by Miss Lila Blain.

The reception was held at the home of the groom. Many congratulatory greetings were received from friends and relatives in England.
